

One SES group inspects animal sign on the north side of Saratoga lake.

Mr. Solomon's class prepares for some group games.

Lilly Maskell collects some fall foliage on Veterans Island.

Ms. Lawson and Ms. Coxbill's classes look at tadpoles on the Saratoga Lake shore.

Three Saratoga Elementary School classes prepare to split up and look for animal tracks and sign.

Fun at Teton Science Camp

Ms. Lawson's class looks amidst the sage for animal sign.

Hunter Shields and Joey Gonzales share crayons.

Students from the third grade class get busy coloring wildlife pictures.

Danyelle Bateman looks at leaves with Sheri Peterson.

Emmy Coxbill discusses how large an animal's bedding area might be.

Brenda Collver looks at Annie Nickers and Luchan Rowe's leaves.

Ms. Coxbill's class plows through tall reeds and grass in their quest for signs of animal habitation.

Gentry Oliver discusses the assignment as her students begin to draw.

Luchan Rowe examines a pine twig as Robyn Jennings explains about different types of leaves.

Catherine Backen, Dusty Lawson and Mike Boswell look at life along the shoreline.

photos by Keith McLendon