

Wildlife Expeditions

GENERAL INFORMATION: MULTI-DAY TOUR

Proper clothing will allow you to enjoy the beauty of Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks, no matter the weather.

Accommodations

Our lodging is based on comfort and access to wildlife viewing areas. Because of their remote locations, the accommodations we use are best described as “rustic western”. They are clean, warm, safe and secure. Please note: all hotels are “smoke-free”. In addition, smoking is not permitted in Wildlife Expeditions vehicles or at Wildlife Expeditions meals.

Climate

Weather in Wyoming is unpredictable. Summer temperature extremes are between 30 – 90 degrees Fahrenheit. In the winter they can range from -30 to 30 degrees Fahrenheit. To be prepared for these variable temperatures, we recommend that you bring warm layers of clothing, including gloves, hats and rain gear.

Physical Fitness

We tailor our trip to the ability and desires of the participants. Participants should be able to walk short distances on uneven terrain. In addition, high elevation, allergies, dehydration, outdoor temperatures and extreme weather conditions can affect your physical performance. Please contact our office if you have any concerns. If you would like to consult with your physician, we will gladly provide you with any needed information.

Getting to Jackson, Wyoming

American, Delta and United Airlines provide air service to Jackson Hole. There is also a daily van shuttle from Salt Lake City. Due to the limited number of flights into the valley, we advise booking flights well in advance to ensure your arrival prior to your expedition. Please keep in mind that you need to make your own travel arrangements to and from Jackson, Wyoming. Our office staff is happy to answer any travel questions you may have. Because we depart early in the morning the first day, we ask that you arrive in Jackson the preceding day. Also, we ask you not to schedule your departure until the day following the end of your expedition.

Packing List

Because we are wildlife viewing early and late in the day, you must be prepared for unpredictable Wyoming weather. Summer temperatures extremes are between 30 and 90 degrees Fahrenheit. In the winter they can range from -30 to 30 degrees Fahrenheit. Wind, sun and precipitation have an enormous effect on how cold or warm you feel. We suggest that you dress in layers, and bring clothes for the broad spectrum of weather conditions. Patagonia down parkas and Sorel snow boots are available upon request. Limited sizes available.

Due to space restrictions in vehicles, we can allow only one soft-sided piece of luggage per couple and a small camera bag or daypack.

Bring a bag like this...

...not like this

All items are highly suggested, but not required.

- Felt lined winter boots (Winter season) and warm boots in Spring and Fall. In all seasons, boots should be large enough to accommodate wool socks without constricting your feet. Ladies dress boots are definitely not adequate!
- A wool hat or synthetic hat that covers your ears
- Baseball hat or brimmed sun hat
- Winter gloves (photographers may also want and additional lighter pair)
- Mittens for the coldest temperatures
- Heavy jacket, such as a parka, with hood
- Wool pants or rain pants. Pants that zip over slacks and boots are best
- Wool or fleece shirt
- Long underwear tops and bottoms. Wool or synthetic are best. (Cotton does not insulate if it gets wet.)
- Pair of pants
- Polypropylene and/or wool socks
- Comfortable shoes
- A small knapsack or daypack
- Camera, film or memory cards and telephoto lens. (Also bring extra batteries since cold can weaken them.)
- Small flashlight
- Travel alarm clock: There are no wake-up calls, phones or clocks on some hotels!
- Sunglasses
- Sunscreen, moisturizing skin lotion, eye drops and lip balm with sunscreen. Western air is dry, and we will be outdoors at high elevation on reflective snow.
